The near future: Intercepted Message Transcript Initial Planetary Report from sensors (Translation) A planet with a suitable gravitational and protective atmosphere. Air and temperate climate that is ideal for sustaining life. An ideal land and sea mass distribution across the planet. Rich mineral resources and fuel sources suitable for development. Suitable land mass for cultivation and providing food for a vast and growing population. Currently numerous residential animal species capable for cultivation and food provision. Easily established and adapted infrastructure to provide efficient deployment and development. Rare and essential metals ripe for extraction. Current Occupying Species: Expendable or suitable for cultivation. Message Broken...attempting re-connect...Jamming in progress.... Re-connect....disruption...Jamming in progress.... Attempting to re-connect covert intercept..... Jamming in progress...unsuccessful attempt....signal lost... Retrieved message fragment..... Planetary Name: Earth Lifeform Initial Report:.....weak Expected Resistance:.....negligibleMessage Ends With war raging across the far reaches of the galaxy, earth sits in apprehensive peace and deafening silence...any news of the battles far away in space jammed. A small detachment of Trevakian Ships guard the lone planet from orbit above whilst world leaders rush to rebuild their fighter strength and manufacture the advanced weaponry the new allies have provided. Time may be running out....and fast. At any time our lives or world could change...and change dramatically. Most of us do not even consider, or are far too afraid to consider.....that this hour may be the last of that perceived normality..... That something has been watching.....
